

Mr. Nobuharu ONO

President & CEO,
NTT DoCoMo USA, Inc.

Nobuharu Ono is currently the President & CEO of NTT DoCoMo USA, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Japan's NTT DoCoMo Inc. established in November 1999. He assumed the position in July 2001.

Mr. Ono graduated from Nagoya University with a bachelor's degree in Engineering in 1968 and began his career at NTT (Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corporation), the largest telecommunication carrier in Japan. He held a variety of executive positions related to the field of transmission during his early years at NTT, and was eventually promoted to Vice President, Executive Manager of the Multimedia Business Department of NTT in 1995.

In July 2000, Mr. Ono moved to NTT DoCoMo, Inc., the mobile arm of NTT which was spun off from its parent company in 1992. At the time he headed the Mobile Multimedia Division, which promotes multimedia communication and services through DoCoMo's wireless network. Mr. Ono was a Board member at NTT DoCoMo (Japan), and acted as Deputy Head of its Global Business Division through June 2002.

Mr. Ono also served on the Board of Directors of AT&T Wireless, a strategic U.S. partner for NTT DoCoMo, from July 2001 through the completion of the Cingular-AT&T Wireless merger in October 2004.

About NTT DoCoMo USA, Inc.

NTT DoCoMo USA, Inc. is the fully owned U.S. subsidiary of NTT DoCoMo, Inc., Japan's leading mobile communications company. Established in November 1999, NTT DoCoMo USA contributes to its parent company's global competitiveness by actively developing business relationships and researching the U.S. wireless and IT industries. In addition, its subsidiary DoCoMo Communications Laboratories USA, Inc. pursues breakthrough research innovation in mobile communications for future generations of wireless networks. In November 2004, DoCoMo USA launched an original content-rich WiFi service in North America called namikiteru. For more information, visit our website <http://www.docomo-usa.com>.